Memory boxes are frequently used in order to promote engagement opportunities for people living with Alzheimer's disease or related dementia. For a person living with a memory-loss condition, the items or objects in a memory box can help them reflect on the past and recall people and events. They can even help hold an Alzheimer's patient's identity, with keepsakes emphasizing an overall theme, person, holiday, or an event that lifts the senior's spirit. This class will assist you with creating the perfect memory box for yourself or a loved one.
